HISTORY OF OXFAM TRAILWALKER

Number of teams participated

1981

50

Trailwalker was originally a fundraising event that challenged the strength and endurance of the Gurkha soldiers. They were required to finish the entire course in 24 hours. It raised HK$80,000 that year; part of the funds was used to subsidise the building of a library in a poor village in Nepal and the rest was donated to the Spastics Association of Hong Kong.

1982

The Falklands War broke out, so no Trailwalker was held.

1983

The Gurkhas invited five civilian teams to join Trailwalker. This was the first time non-military teams could participate in the event.

1986

100

- Jointly organising Trailwalker for the first time, Oxfam obtained one- third of the donations.
- Having fully opened the event to the general public for the first time, Trailwalker saw 69 Gurkha and 31 civilian teams join it. In the end, a civilian team claimed the championship.

1987

166

The Organiser introduced two start times for the first time: one in the daytime and the other in the evening. Governor Wilson officiated the event as the Guest of Honour.

1988

288

1989

305

Seventy-five Gurkha and 230 civilian teams participated in the event – this was the first time there were more civilian teams than military teams.

1990

419

1991

480

Hong Kong Telecom provided telephone services by installing cables along the trail, which allowed better communication than the Gurkhas' VHF radios in the past.

1992

584

Barcode scanning was adopted, which allowed the Organiser to keep track of participants' locations during the event.

1993

600

1994

609

1995

611

This was the second time a civilian team became the first team to cross the finish line: Carlingford Lombard Comets completed the course in 14 hours 26 minutes.

1996

659

A sweet victory for the Gurkhas during their last Trailwalker. They crossed the finish line in just 13 hours 28 minutes.
